

Mary Rose Ragon was born and raised in Western Pennsylvania and presently lives in Venango County with her husband, daughter and two rescue dogs. Her pressed flower creations provide unique items made from locally harvested flowers and other plant material.

Mary Rose has been pressing plant material since she was a young girl, still using simple presses made by her father. Many of her quality products are made from rescued and reclaimed materials. A percentage of her profit is donated to the Oil City St. Elizabeth Food Pantry where she volunteers. Mary Rose has provided a number of pressed plant material classes for local garden clubs, church groups and at the Transit Art Gallery and Gifts. She has entered her work in the Oil Heritage Art Show and Franklin's Annual Nature Art Showcase and Sale. Her work can be found at the Transit Art Gallery and Gifts, Artist's Attic, Cook Forest Sawmill Center and at local craft/vendor shows.
